

R. Erdem Erkul started his academic career in Hacettepe University, Turkey. He also worked for the Department of Public Administration in 2003. In 2005 he established www.digitaldevlet.net a web portal on e-government and informatics, and is also the editor of this website. In 2008, he started a new web site: www.digital-government.net. R.Erdem Erkul has publications and studies in e- government, web 2.0, Strategic Planning, Total Quality Management, New Public Administration, Informatics and Strategic Management.

Erkul conducted research at the National Center For Digital Government, (which was established at Harvard University in 2002 in USA ) with Prof. Jane Fountain as a Doctoral Research Fellow during the 2008-2009 academic year. His research interests include implementation of digital government as a public policy. He is also interested in issues regarding mobile government ( m-government).

He is an Executive Board Member of the Informatics Association of Turkey and he consults many digital government activities and awards. He is editor of Informatics Magazine by the Informatics Association of Turkey. Since January 2010, R. Erdem Erkul is an official representative of the Informatics Association of Turkey, Member Society of CEPIS. Erkul, is also a member of the Turkish American Scientists and Scholars Association (TASSA).