PRESS RELEASE

UPGRADE – Europe’s number one e-journal for informatics professionals has a new website www.cepis.org/upgrade

Brussels, 15 July 2010: UPGRADE’s website is newly revamped and has moved to a new address. The latest ICT related developments and technology trends found in each issue can now be downloaded free of charge from www.cepis.org/upgrade.

With thousands of readers per issue, the range of topics covered in UPGRADE’s bi-monthly publications, have attracted European ICT professionals and academics for over 10 years. World-class ICT specialists publish their knowledge on newest developments and current hot topics enabling successful ICT professionals and academics from Europe and beyond to broaden their knowledge, deepen their professional development and to keep up with the latest.

Founded in October 2000 by CEPIS – the Council of European Professional Informatics Societies – UPGRADE is a service that CEPIS, in conjunction with ATI, its Spanish member, provides to the 36 national Informatics Societies and their 300,000 adherents that comprise its members, as well as to the European ICT community at large.

Providing visibility for the topics at the heart of many ICT communities in Europe has been critical in the success of this journal. Previous topics include:

Emerging Information Technologies

Identity and Privacy Management

Experiences and Advances in Software Quality

IT Governance

EUCIP: A model for Definition of Measurement of ICT skills

Subscribing is free of charge and your email address will not be shared or used for any other purpose. If you’d like to receive new issue alerts direct to your inbox: Subscribe to UPGRADE here.
